SAN FRANCISCO.-Declaring that an attorney for the defense who aided a guilty man to escape punishment was with him a party to the crime, that certainty rather than severity of punishment would prevent crime, and that legislatures should adjourn for ten years so that the public could digest the laws already passed, Dr. Carl Kelsey of the sociology department of the University of Pennsylvania spoke before the Commonwealth Club. His subject was "Wnat is Wrong With Our Criminal System." He is one of the several men from eastern colleges who are giving lectures at the University of California summer school. In his talk he denied the doctrine of equal moral responsibility, stating that feeble-minded persons could not be held responsible for crimes 1s could normal ones, and he traced the history of punishments and procedure from the days of early England. "First Basis Vengeance." "The first basis of reaction to crime is vengeance," said the speaker, "and then this changes to the idea of repression so that other crimes may not
